6 Ways to Motivate Yourself to Take Action

6 Ways to Motivate Yourself to Take Action

James 1:22 says, "But be doers of the word, and not merely hearers who deceive themselves."

Faith in the Greek is a verb. Verbs are action words. Just as you need to take action in your faith by stepping out and trusting God, you need to take action steps each day in your business.

Taking action towards your dreams and goals is clearly vital, but it's not always easy to stay consistent and build momentum. It becomes easier when you hold onto this overarching goal:

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Matthew 6:33

As you spend time with God during prayer and meditation, you will be attentive to taking action to do the next right thing. Your steps will be guided.

Taking action is one of those important pieces to the puzzle along with proper planning and the drive to succeed. Those that take action are the ones that see results.

How do you motivate yourself to continue working toward your goals, especially when you face challenges? Although some strategies will motivate you more than others, it's good to experiment with several different ways of finding your motivation. Then, when the chips are down, you can depend on one of these strategies to get back on track.

Try these techniques to motivate yourself to take action:

1. Break your goals into smaller, attainable steps. Especially if you're working toward a bigger goal, break it up into a series of small steps that you know you can achieve. After each step, celebrate and reward yourself for a job well done. With small steps, you'll be more likely to stay on task because your rewards come often.
2. Know your limits. You know yourself best and only you can identify your personal limits. If you move too slowly, you'll know deep down that you could be taking more action. However, when you try to do too much, you risk burnout. Figure out that magic point where you can achieve success without much stress, and you'll remain motivated to keep taking action. Remember that God in your Partner in your business. When you work in tandem, you no longer need to stress and strive, but allow God to work through you.
3. Take away your distractions. There are some things that might be more likely to distract you than others. Remove yourself from these situations when you know that you need to be taking action.
 - For example, if you're a social person, perhaps you'll need to stay away from friends and family during the times you want to work. Also, avoid surfing the net, video games, and television when it's time to work.
4. Ask for the help you need. Don't be afraid to get help from others. There are many experts in the Audacious Faith community that can give you answers or provide speedier solutions where you need help. There's only so much you can accomplish in one day all by yourself. It's true that sometimes you'll have to accomplish certain things on your own, but if there's any way at all that someone else can help, consider that possibility and ask them.
5. Find an activity that energizes you. Sometimes you'll find that there's a period in the day where you go into a slump. Maybe you have trouble starting your engines in the morning, or perhaps it's the afternoon that causes you to feel sluggish.

- In these times, find some activity to re-motivate and energize you. One thing that can energize you is a good exercise routine. It'll get your heart rate up and send fresh oxygen to your brain. This will refresh you, help you think more clearly, and make you feel more like doing your work. Even a simple walk around the block will do.
- 6. Keep a tight schedule. A good schedule and organized plan will help keep you motivated and on track. In the beginning phases of planning your goals, be very specific when deciding what you need to do and when. This way, when you complete a step, you won't have to spend time figuring out what you're supposed to do next. Don't keep plans and to-do lists in your head. Get them out and onto paper.

If you want to succeed, you can do it through purposeful action. Just think about what you've done to accomplish goals in the past. Chances are you had a plan and followed through. It might not always be easy, but when you remain motivated, you'll reach whatever goal you set out to accomplish! Remember, "seek first the kingdom; and all these things will be added unto you."
